Child Maintenance

ASK ALL:

Q696 [CMIntro]

SHOWCARD (J1/J2)

This next set of questions is about child maintenance. Usually when parents don't live together, their children live mainly with one parent.

By law, the other parent should pay child maintenance to the parent with whom the child lives most of the time. But the question is how much maintenance (the law should require/is fair to expect) the other parent to pay. There are no right or wrong answers on this. We want to know what you think (the law should require/is fair).

I'm going to tell you about several different situations, and ask you (to imagine that you are the person who has to decide how much maintenance the law should require the parent to pay in each case. We want you to tell us what you think the amount should be / how much maintenance you believe it is fair to expect the parent to pay in each case).

FOR THE FOLLOWING QUESTIONS:

RESPONDENT MUST BE ABLE TO VIEW THE SCREEN, PLEASE MAKE SURE THE RESPONDENT CAN SEE THE SCREEN AT THE NEXT QUESTION.

IF ASKED FOR FURTHER INFORMATION ABOUT THE FAMILY: I haven't got any more information about this family apart from what's here on the screen.

IF RESPONDENT RELUCTANT/FINDS IT HARD TO SAY AN AMOUNT: Don't worry, you can just give me your best guess: an amount which you feel is about right.

ONLY ENTER '£0' IF RESPONSE IS 'ZERO'. DK OR REFUSAL SHOULD BE CODED AS Ctrl+K or Ctrl+R AS USUAL.

IF THE RESPONDENT DOES NOT WANT TO ANSWER FOR ANY REASON, PLEASE USE Ctrl+R

I want you to imagine a family in which -

- There is one child, an 8 year old boy
- His parents were married for 10 years, but are now divorced
- He lives mostly with his mother, but sees his father twice a week after school, and usually stays with his father overnight once at the weekend

(Family:

- 8 year old boy
- Parents married for 10 years, now divorced
- Boy lives mostly with mother, sees father twice in week and stays overnight once at the weekend)

I'm going to ask you nine questions about this family. The only change from question to question is the parents' incomes. By income, I mean their entire income after tax, including any wages, tax credits, state benefits and any other money coming into the household.

Each question will ask you how much child maintenance you think (the law should require/it is fair to expect) the father to pay the mother each month, all things considered. Remember, there are no right or wrong answers - we just want you to decide.

Q699 [BaseF01]

(Family:

- 8 year old boy
- Parents married for 10 years, now divorced
- Boy lives mostly with mother, sees father twice in week and stays overnight once at the weekend)

In the next three questions, I want you to imagine a situation where the (father's/mother's/mother's new husband's) income is (£900/£2,200/£1,000/£3,000) per month after tax. In each question, I'm just going to change the income of the mother/father.

So, firstly, imagine that in this family the father's income is (£1,000/£3,000/£1,000/£3,000/£1,000/£3,000/£1,000/£3,000) per month, and the (mother's/mother's new husband's) income is (£900/£2,200/£900/£2,200/£1,000/£3,000/£1,000/£3,000) per month:

How much child maintenance do you think (the father should be required/it is fair to expect the father) to pay the mother each month?

Q708 [Scen]

Now I want to ask you about a different family.

IF SCENARIO GROUP 1

(In this family the parents had never married. They had lived together for 10 years and are now separated. Just as in the first family I asked you about, there is one child, an 8 year old boy, who lives mostly with his mother, but sees his father twice a week after school, and usually stays with his father overnight once at the weekend.)

IF SCENARIO GROUP 2

(In this family the mother got pregnant by the father on the night they met, but they never lived together, or had any relationship at all after that night. Just as in the first family I asked you about, there is one child, an 8 year old boy, who lives mostly with his mother, but sees his father twice a week after school, and usually stays with his father overnight once at the weekend.)

IF SCENARIO GROUP 3

(As before, the parents were married for 10 years and are now divorced. But instead of the 8 year old boy seeing his father twice a week after school and staying overnight once at the weekend, he spends half his time with his father and half his time with his mother - living one week at his father's house, one week at his mother's house.)

IF SCENARIO GROUP 4

(As before, the parents were married for 10 years, and are now divorced. But in this case, the 8 year old boy has had no contact at all with his father during the past year.)

IF SCENARIO GROUP 5

(As before, the parents were married for 10 years, and are now divorced. But while the 8 year old boy still sees his father twice a week after school and once at the weekend, he doesn't stay with his father overnight.)

IF SCENARIO GROUP 6

(As before, the parents were married for 10 years, and are now divorced. But instead of the 8 year old boy seeing his father twice a week after school and staying overnight once at the weekend, @bhe has had no contact at all with his father during the past year. The father has tried to see his son again and again, but the mother has refused to let him, for no good reason.)

IF SCENARIO GROUP 7

(As before, the parents were married for 10 years, and are now divorced. But instead of the 8 year old boy seeing his father twice a week after school and staying overnight once at the weekend, @bhe has had no contact at all with his father during the past year. The mother has encouraged the father to see his son, again and again, but the father hasn't done so, for no good reason.)

IF SCENARIO GROUP 8

(As before, the parents were married for 10 years, and are now divorced. Just as in the first family I asked you about, there is one child, an 8 year old boy, who lives mostly with his mother, but sees his father twice a week after school, and usually stays with his father overnight once at the weekend. What is different in this family is that this father has remarried and has a child with his new wife. His new wife is not working, but she does receive about £100 in state benefits each month.)

IF SCENARIO GROUP 9

(As before, the parents were married for 10 years, and are now divorced. Just as in the first family I asked you about, there is one child, an 8 year old boy, lives mostly with his mother, but sees his father twice a week after school, and usually stays with his father overnight once each weekend. What is different in this family is that the mother has remarried. Her new husband is working and he earns £1,000 after tax each month.)

IF SCENARIO GROUP 10

(As before, the parents were married for 10 years, and are now divorced. Just as in the first family I asked you about, there is one child, an 8 year old boy, who lives mostly with his mother, but sees his father twice a week after school, and usually stays with his father overnight once each weekend. What is different in this family is that the mother has remarried. Her new husband is working and he earns £3,000 after tax each month.)

IF SCENARIO GROUP 11

(As before, the parents were married for 10 years, and are now divorced. Just as in the first family I asked you about, there is one child, an 8 year old boy, who lives mostly with his mother, but sees his father twice a week after school, and usually stays with his father overnight once each weekend. What is different in this family is that the mother has remarried, and is not working. However, the mother's new husband is working, and the mother receives about £100 of state benefits each month.)

Just as in the first family I asked you about, there is one child, an 8 year old boy, who lives mostly with his mother, but sees his father twice a week after school, and usually stays with his father overnight once at the weekend.)

ASK ALL:

Once again, I'm going to ask you nine questions about child maintenance for this family, and the only thing that will change from question to question is the parents' incomes. Remember, by income, I mean their entire income after tax, including any wages, tax credits, state benefits and any other money coming into the household.

As before, there are no right or wrong answers: we just want you to decide how much child maintenance ^fairrequire4 the father to pay the mother, all things considered.

Q711 [ScenF03]

(Family: defined by scenario group - see above)

What if the father's income is (still) £(1,000/2,000/3,000) per month but the (mother/new husband)'s is (still) £(900/1,500/2,200) per month.

(How much child maintenance do you think (the father should be required/it is fair to expect the father) to pay the mother each month?)

Range: 0 ... 9997

Q712 [ScenF04]

(Family: defined by scenario group - see above)

Now, in the next three questions, the (father(mother/new husband))'s income is (£1,500/£2,000) per month after tax. (And the new husband's income is still (£1,000/£3,000) per month. So,) again, in each question, I'm just going to change the income of the ((mother/new husband)/father).

Now what if the father's income is £(1,000/2,000/3,000) per month but the (mother/new husband)'s is £(900/1,500/2,200) per month.
